Furniture Made in Germany is Very Popular All Over the World

The German furniture industry is certainly able to hold its own in the face of international competition. Germany continues to be counted among the world's biggest furniture nations. The main reasons for its good reputation are the high standards of quality, the use of high-grade materials, and the attractive design, but also the reliability and production competence of German producers.

That has all led to furniture made in Germany becoming increasingly popular in other countries as well. The export rate recently rose to 32.4%. In the first three quarters of 2017, the export volume grew to EUR 4.3 billion.
